Product description

Our People Counting System's infrared technology offers a reliable, user-friendly and affordable pedestrian counter. The transmitter unit transmits 2 infrared beams to the receiver unit. When someone passes between the 2 units and breaks the infrared beams, the count value increases by one. This counter is direction sensitive, and users can choose which count direction is displayed on the screen. The simple end-user installation and maintenance of our systems eliminates technical support costs. Our People Counting Systems are all wireless and battery powered. Our People Counting Systems are some of the most cost-effective counters on the market.
